

This is the first college to be established in India and entire South-East Asia during 1969, meant purely for fisheries sciences under the erstwhile University of Agricultural Sciences, Bangalore and currently functioning under the Karnataka Veterinary, Animal and Fisheries Sciences University, Bidar. The institute offers semester based undergraduate degree course B.F.Sc. and postgraduate degree courses M.F.Sc. and Ph.D. in various fisheries subjects. The institute has excellent research facilities and has expanded its activities including fisheries extension and transfer of technology via sponsored training courses in capacity building and fisheries human resources development in the state and country. The students who have excelled from the institute are currently seated in high ranking positions both at central and state governments and abroad reflecting the high caliber and potential opportunities that the fisheries sciences degree is providing.
